The Beat of Resistance is a musical exhibition showcasing the sounds of Asian America. Focused on beats-oriented music, this metrical program sets the rhythm of moving bodies and movement bodies, to spark mad explosive spontaneity, and get us ready for what promises to be a heavy 2020.

Beat fascism to the beat of resistance. Get ready to move.

Lia is a Philly-based startup that makes at-home diagnostic kits, mostly known for their flushable + biodegradable paper pregnancy tests. As a photographer, I have accumulated a strong inventory of Lia's visual assets: product photographs, digital collages, GIFs, and videos for web, print + online ads, and social media.

Publication: JINOLEE Series

JINOLEE is a series of five self-published photo books made between 2016-19. The series uses everyday pictures to narrate personal stories, focusing on the practices of photographing, editing, sequencing, and layout design.

Publication: (in)equality

(in)equality is a student-driven publication project from Asian Arts Initiative. As a lead teaching artist and a graphic designer, I developed and taught an year-long curriculum for the book contents and directed the publishing process from conceptualizing to the final product.
